OBA

(b) Kyusa ekitundu kino mu Luganda.

Whenever I am counseling parents, I tell them to dress their children appropriately. A healthy seven year old child may look many years older. The mistake some parents make is to dress children in revealing clothes like miniskirts and tight trousers. When a man looks at such children, he sees a grown woman. Men are enticed by what they see. If we don't dress our children properly, we risk them being defiled.

I have brought up my children to let their light shine in the world. Nowadays most women and girls wear trousers that leave nothing to the imagination, but I told my children that even if it is the trend, they should not be like the people of the world, but rather an example. All my children have complied with this rule and even at university they do not wear trousers. One of my nieces is supposed to wear trousers at her job, but she still wears her usual clothes on the way to work. She changes on her arrival and puts on her dress again before going back home.

When they joined university, we bought them mobile phones because we did not want another person with ill motives to deceive them using phones.

God has been good to our children. None of them has even been admitted to hospital. Three of them are university graduates, the first in our clan.

Our children excelled because whenever they did their examinations, we obtained their timetables and prayed and fasted for them at the same time they were sitting the examinations.

When it comes to dating, we encourage our girls to bring anyone interested in them home so we can advise them. But mostly we pray for them.
